Tuesday November 10th 2009, in the perfect acoustics of Cadogan Hall, London:

“Two Sopranos and a Symphony”

With £100, you can play a part and help us find £15,000 to make this happen.

The Orion Symphony Orchestra is recognised as one of the most galvanising groups in the country. It teams up with Grange Park Opera to present two of the UK’s leading sopranos in an ambitious evening of transcendental loss and love.

Susan Gritton returns from Sydney Opera House to sing Strauss’s Four Last Songs, and Alwyn Mellor is the Royal Opera House understudy Isolde, and for Orion sings the Liebestod from Wagner’s Tristan und Isolde.

After the interval comes Brahms Symphony No.2.

WHAT IS YOUR TIPPLE?:

In the best Austrian tradition, we are looking for 20 Kaffee Drinkers, £100+:
